"The in-house supervision group.....was the enabling moment for me. I decided that I would go on from there and run my own supervision group. It was an excellent investment in time and a sharp learning curve. It made me aware of the power of the group to cover blind spots and how group wisdom is at times more than the sum of its parts when harnessed."

Aims:

This intensive two and a half day residential course is open to any CAT Practitioner interested in CAT supervision. It is particularly designed for trainee CAT Supervisors or CAT Practitioners with 16 cases completed who are thinking of training in supervision. For trainee supervisors it offers an ACAT-approved alternative to sitting in with a senior supervisor. The course has also been highly valued as an opportunity for qualified and experienced supervisors to look more intensively at their own practice as part of their CPD.

The course will offer:

- Demonstrations of, and practice in, the relational competencies of being a CAT supervisor
- Opportunities to explore therapist and supervisor styles and their personal and professional implications
- Reflection upon the theory in practice of the 'dialogic, cognitive and analytic' understanding unique to CAT's relational supervision
- A framework for on-going reflective, relational practice as a CAT supervisor whether directly for individual therapy or indirectly with staff teams and individuals

Methods:

Skills practice and supervision of the key aspects of CAT will be demonstrated step by step through role play by the trainers followed by role play in small groups of three by the participants. This skills work will be alternated with personal reflection groups which will explore common enactments in the role of the CAT supervisor. Issues relating to being active, authoritative and flexible within the zone of the supervisee's learning will be explored. There will be two key presentations relating to CAT supervision on the topic of Transference and Counter Transference and therapeutic moments in the context of a dialogical and analytic approach to relational skills in the supervision of CAT. Part of the ethos of the course will be the shared experience of being a community of supervisors committed to CAT. Participants will bring details of a recent or current case, with which they are familiar, as the basis of role play.

The course will begin with a welcome and an introduction to the aims and methods at 5.00 pm on Tuesday evening. After an early evening meal at 6.00 pm, there will be a 90 minute skills practice followed by the personal reflection group. Days two and three will follow the same pattern and the course will finish at 3.30/4pm on Thursday.

Trainers for the course:

Steve Potter is a widely experienced trainer and supervisor in CAT who has worked at all levels of CAT training. He is chair of the International Cognitive Analytic Therapy Association and was, for many years, a teacher of social group work and skills in group and interpersonal relations. Steve is attracted to CAT as a versatile, relational framework for mapping and tracking our psycho-social patterns of being in the world and their implications for mental health.

Jane Stephens is a CAT Psychotherapist and Supervisor. She co-facilitated the Practitioner Training in Southampton, and currently holds the role of National External Examiner for Supervisor Training in ACAT. Jane works in the NHS and in Private Practice, and has a keen interest in adapting her work both for 6 sessions and also for the longer term.

Venue:

The course will take place at Holland House, Cropthorne, near Evesham; proven to be a very welcoming and suitable setting for CAT training having been the location for the last four intakes of the IRRAPT CAT Psychotherapy Course. Holland House is located five miles from Evesham railway station. Details of Holland House can be found through the following web link www.hollandhouse.org/
