

Practitioner Training in Cognitive Analytic Therapy

organised by Catalyse
(formerly known as CAT North)

October 2014 to July 2016

Practitioner Training

The Practitioner Training is a two year in-service training for people with a core mental health profession leading to accreditation and professional membership of the Association for Cognitive Analytic Therapy (ACAT).

For those interested in seeking UKCP registration as a psychotherapist, this course fulfils the entry requirements for Psychotherapy Training in CAT which is a further two years and leads to UKCP registration.

Aims of the Course

Catalyse aims to provide a training programme to enable core professionals with competence in their own field to enhance their understanding and skills in psychotherapy by learning the theory and methods of Cognitive Analytic Therapy.

Structure

The course is spread over two years and consists of training days, seminars, supervised clinical work, experiential learning and a personal CAT.

Training Days

There will be 20 training days over the two years divided into the following themes:

- Fundamental CAT concepts
- Theoretical bases of integrative psychotherapy
- Theories of object relations and inter-subjectivity
- Personality disorders - theories and treatment
- Basic concepts in psychotherapy practice
- Evidence based psychotherapy practice
- Principles of ethical professional practice

The course aims to familiarise trainees with the theory of CAT, providing an understanding of the Procedural Sequence (Object Relations) Model and Reciprocal Role Relationships, as well as introducing later developments in CAT, of activity theory and self states. Trainees will be helped to apply these concepts, along with the CAT reformulatory tools (prose letters, diagrams and goodbye letters) through skills practice and supervised clinical work.

The training inputs will address the background theories which have informed the development of CAT and will also cover issues common to all psychotherapies within the CAT context: assessment; transference & counter transference; therapeutic alliance; process of change; working with difficult patients; termination; follow up. All the training inputs will be planned in the light of the social/political context and psychotherapy research. There will be a balance of presentations, clinical applications, experiential learning and skills training inputs.

There are ten days spread throughout each of the two years, starting with 2 days in October and 2 days in November, then a further 4 days from January through to May. Each year ends with a 2 days residential in June. Single days are Fridays and 2 day blocks are Thursdays and Fridays.

Seminars

Trainees will be required to set up seminar groups of between 3 and 6 participants, meeting for an hour and a half 15 times a year (or equivalent). Each group will have some input from a seminar leader. However, the aim is to encourage trainees to take an active approach to their learning needs and to identify gaps in knowledge which their own activity can meet. The course trainers will provide the reading material and guidelines to assist study etc and will approve arrangements.

Personal therapy

Trainees are required to undertake a 16 session CAT during training.

Supervised clinical work

This is part of two CAT practice skills modules.

Trainees work with a minimum of 8 clients under the supervision of an accredited CAT supervisor. Supervision is weekly for 1½ hours, usually in groups of 3 trainees, with a minimum of 40 supervision groups each year. Trainees are expected to attend regularly and are required to be in supervision until the completion of all clinical work. This will normally take a minimum of two years but may extend up to a further six months depending on the individual trainee's case mix and circumstances.

Support

The course has one or two trainee advisors available for confidential consultation in the event of trainees having difficulties during the course.

Assessment

Supervisor & trainee reports on supervision.

Trainees submit two case studies for assessment, one by the end of each year of Practitioner Level Training.

Trainees submit two essays about the application of CAT concepts in their clinical work of up to 4,000 words.

Venue

Training days are in Manchester, with the residential usually in West Yorkshire or Derbyshire. Supervision groups are currently run in various locations in the north of England and elsewhere. Seminar groups run at venues convenient to trainees. We provide a list of CAT training therapists but trainees may have to be prepared to travel for therapy.
